Integrated Soil Fertility Management for Food Security: matching capacities in Anglophone West African Nation HEIs with local needs

CAPACITY4FOOD

Our main objectives are:

- To foster capacity building & regional integration ISFM for Food Security in the Anglophone West African Universities:
- To enhance Regional Networking in ISFM focused on Food Security by setting up a Regional Network of Centres of Excellence in ISFM for Food Security
- To develop targeted activities in ISFM for Food Security at local level with a view to increase HEIs capacity building towards sustainable food production

Main CAPACITY4FOOD outputs

Analysis

With the analysis activities we will have an in-depth insight of the situation in terms of ISFM toward Food Security, but also their knowledge and practice in terms of how to establish durable and beneficial links with local small holds and government authorities. We will produce the CAPACITY4FOOD in-depth need analysis study.

Capacity building

CAPACITY4FOOD will set up the creation of a Regional Network of Centres of Excellence in ISFM for Food Security. We will organise trainings for the Centres staff that will be then multiplied and opened to universities and stakeholders of the region. The CoEs will be a special unit of technical and administrative staff specialised in ISFM for Food Security with skills and competence in transversal topics such as project management cycle, quality assurance of study programmes and university services. The Centres' main mission is to support academic staff of our university for the better definition of the curricula, but also other universities, local farmers and government authorities (at national & regional level) to build up partnership, start joint international initiatives and initiate agreements.

Networking

National Matching Events will bring together HEIs staff and students with the local farmers to promote graduate employability through direct meetings with farmers and local recruiters. Regional Round Tables will count on the participation of the Centre of Excellence staff Network created as well as government authorities, small holders, NGOs and associations and aim to influence future priorities for legislation in the Agriculture field for the benefit and development of all sectors involved.
